Le Lapin

Macau, China

Le Lapin (The Rabbit) is a modern French restaurant located in the Macau Science Center, a distinctive conical-shaped building designed by renowned architect I.M. Pei.

Influenced by the venue's circular form, the owner's Chinese Zodiac (the rabbit), and Macau's status as the intersection between East and West, the design team arrived at this richly layered narrative—the Chinese fairy tale of the Jade rabbit in the moon.

In Chinese folklore, the rabbit is the companion of the moon goddess. This relationship fueled every element of the design, from the entryway to the private dining rooms and restrooms. Lunar references are rich throughout the restaurant, as are depictions of the protagonist of the story. Monsieur Rabbit is a French sophisticate, a wine aficionado and a bit of cad. The illustrated identity created for this brand is based on turn-of-the-century French lithographs.
